

Dillon Gage Metals Names Walter Pehowich Executive Vice President

Industry Veteran Will Oversee Precious Metals Investment Services

ADDISON, TX (July 21, 2015) – Dillon Gage Metals, an international precious metals wholesaler, has announced that Walter Pehowich has joined the executive team. Pehowich will serve as the executive vice president of precious metals investment services and will work from the company's New York City trading office.

No stranger to the industry, Pehowich brings over 38 years of experience in precious metals investment services, having begun his career in 1977 at Bache, which later transitioned to Prudential-Bache Securities, and then Jefferies Investment Bank. While at Jefferies, he served as senior vice president with oversight of investment grade precious metal products.

"We are absolutely thrilled that Walter has joined our team," stated Terry Hanlon, president of Dillon Gage Metals. "A veteran industry insider like Walter has an incredible depth of knowledge and experience in precious metals. His impeccable reputation precedes him, and he will be an ideal asset for Dillon Gage Metals' business interests and customers."

Pehowich holds a National Futures Association (NFA) Series 3 license, authorizing him to advise and sell alternative investments in commodities and futures markets. In addition, he has an in-depth understanding of all aspects of the precious metals refinery industry, including melt and assay operations as well as logistics and traffic.

"After trading and doing business with Dillon Gage Metals for many years, I am honored to join their elite organization of precious metals experts," said Pehowich. "I'm confident that the contributions we'll make together will greatly benefit the existing and future customer bases of the company."

The Dillon Gage Metals New York City trading office is located at 1110 South Ave., Ste. 100, Staten Island, N.Y. 10314. For more information, please visit www.dillongage.com or call (800)375-4653.
