

Joseph Urso of ActivePure Advances as a National Finalist in the 2022 Entrepreneur Of The Year Awards

The CEO is Honored for His Leadership and Growth of the Air and Surface Purification Technology

DALLAS (June 27, 2022) – The chairman and CEO of ActivePure, the global leader in air and surface purification, Joseph Urso, has been selected a finalist of Ernst & Young \(EY\) Entrepreneur Of The Year 2022 awards. The Entrepreneur Of The Year award is a prestigious award that recognizes leaders in advancing companies who exemplify acts of a successful entrepreneur.

National finalists were announced at an award celebration on June 25, 2022, in which Urso was selected to move on to the next round of judging. Upon final decision, The Ernst & Young Entrepreneur Of The Year 2022 national winner will be announced in November, moving on to compete at the international level.

EY's Entrepreneur Of The Year is an annual recognition award that celebrates ambitious leaders who carry out successful and dynamic business practices. Entrepreneur Of The Year winners are visionaries aiming to grow, revolutionize and flourish within their businesses to build a better world.

Following the announcement of first round finalists, EY Entrepreneur Of The Year judges conducted interviews with each finalist to factor their individual traits into their profile. To honor regional finalists, Urso attended an event celebrating his selection as a Central Plains regional finalist earlier this year in May.

"It is an absolute honor to move forward as a regional winner for the Ernst & Young Entrepreneur Of The Year award. The vision at ActivePure is to provide improved indoor air quality to educational, commercial, medical and residential environments that helps to meet the highest quality and safety standards," said Urso. "ActivePure was born out of the goal to provide every person across the globe with the best possible indoor air quality, and has since grown to be made available in HVAC, compact and portable devices."

Dallas-based privately held ActivePure has been the global leader in active, 24/7 surface and air purification systems for healthcare, educational, commercial and public facilities, hospitality, and residential applications since 1924.
