

Dillon Gage Metals Hires Industry Veteran Ryan Valadez Precious Metals Veteran Will Head Up International Trading Division

ADDISON, Texas (Oct. 18, 2016) – Dillon Gage Metals, an international precious metals wholesaler, has announced that industry veteran Ryan Valadez will join the company and serve as Executive Vice President of Global Trading. His responsibilities will include both development and maintenance of overseas business interests including bullion trading, refining, and depository services.

Valadez comes to Dillon Gage Metals from Monex Precious Metals where, for over a decade, he oversaw business categories related to market development, forecasting and the creation of new business efforts with domestic and foreign mints. He also cultivated mutually beneficial relationships with select clientele in both the institutional and private wealth management investment channels.

“We are both honored and thrilled to welcome Ryan Valadez to the Dillon Gage Metals team,” said Terry Hanlon, president. “Overseas markets are both vital and crucial to our interests and having a representative of Ryan’s caliber in this role leaves us in good hands.”

Valadez graduated from the University of Notre Dame with a Bachelor of Business Administration in Finance and Computer Applications, and holds a Master in Business Administration degree from Pepperdine University.

“My family and I are eager to begin a new adventure and happy that Dillon Gage Metals will be a part of it,” stated Valadez. “I am proud and excited to join the team and I hope to carry on their tradition of success.”
